Amsterdam, Netherlands: W139 Contemporary Art Space in the Red Light District. Hurry; closes tomorrow. Congrats to the mother of the bride to be and all, festively dressed in colorful pink and green bachelorette party outfits. Watched a series of thought-provoking videos installation project. Tomorrow is the last day after several weeks, so stop in on Sunday. In one video, a male voice talks about other people hearing your thoughts, and the harmonious patterns your thoughts create as you hear and see soothing rushing water sounds and images of trash floating in water. Pollution. How much waste do humans generate. Beer bottles, incense burning smoke, trippy melty visuals perfect for those with altered attitudes. Later, a female voice talks about balance and finding the truth of your life by asking yourself three questions and sort of meditating on receiving the answer. Wish to have had more time to do these exercises, but the gallery was closing in 10 minutes. Always need more time ♡☆☆♡ W139 opens at noon. Perfect ♡☆☆♡

Educational, interesting conversational video clips about various topics Including banana spiders, spanish moss, jungle creatures, etc ... with a splash of rap poetry presented in a very stoney way

♡☆☆ Went back to W139 with a friend and watched the videos. ☆♡☆☆ Thinking how nice it will be for coffeeshops and venues like Woodstock '69 at the beach to play these videos with the headsets for people to enjoy ♡☆☆ Also, reach out to Cannabis Cup org for them to use these awesome videos at this year's event hopefully in November ♡☆☆
